MARRIAGE PREPARATION INFORMATION

CONGRATULATIONS!

The decision to marry is one of the most significant life decisions that we make.

The central words of the marriage ceremony spell out the immensity of the commitment you make to each other in the presence of God, the Church and your family and friends:

I take you....to be my husband/wife.

I promise to be true to you
in good times and in bad,
in sickness and in health.

I will love you and honour you
All the days of my life

As this commitment is such an all-encompassing one on which rests your future happiness, wellbeing and growth, the Church asks that you spend quality time these next few months giving further serious consideration to this decision.

The danger is that this vital time is dominated with real concerns of less important matters. While these need to be addressed, the significant matters — your relationship and commitment to faithful and lasting love — need to be your main focus during this time.

MARRIAGE PREPARATION INVOLVES:

EXPRESS AFFECTION EVERY DAY

Dr. Nathaniel Branden is a California psychologist whose advice about marriage has appeared in several national magazines. When couples come to him asking, "Are there specific ways in which couples who remain happily in love behave differently from couples who don't?"

Branden says, "Yes!" He points out that couples who stay in love never take their relationship for granted, but they express their affection for each other every day in various ways.

They frequently say "I love you."

They are physically affectionate, holding hands, hugging, cuddling.

They express their love sexually.

They verbalize their appreciation and admiration.

They share their thoughts and feelings, learning to self-disclose what's on their minds and hearts to each other, confiding in each other.

They express their love materially, giving little gifts to each other.

They create time alone together.
